KEY PHRASE

“Why not me?”

SUMMARY

This practice teaches fighters to build a team SMART goal for the Show Off. The coach explains each component, then guides the team to shape one collective goal for the weeks ahead. Training introduces the slip, technique, reaction drill, and a no-contact slip-then-jab partner drill, then works 1 • 2 with slip-2 on the mitts and closes with Footwork Freeze.

MATERIALS

- Fighter’s Mindset journal
- Mitts & gloves
- Cones
- Chart paper or poster board
- Writing utensils

OBJECTIVES

By the end of this practice, fighters will:

Develop a SMART goal as a team

COACH MESSAGE

15 MIN

SAY

Alright, Fighters, today we’re talking about something that helps every boxer, student, and leader grow: goals. We’re three weeks into this program, and in seven weeks you’ll be stepping into the spotlight to show your skills in front of your teammates. That Show Off isn’t about looking good. It’s about showing how far you’ve come.

The truth is, people who set goals are more likely to reach them. They know what they’re working toward, and the goal keeps them focused.

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Break down the SMART framework, then brainstorm as a team about SMART goals. Fighters capture the team goal and their own part in it.

HIGH SCHOOL

Set one SMART goal for something outside boxing that matters to you: a class, a friendship, a habit. Name the obstacle most likely to derail it, and your plan for when it hits.

SAY JRNL Also in the fighter journals

So today we're going to create a team goal for our training leading up to Week 10, using something called a SMART goal.

A SMART goal is clear and realistic, it helps you stay focused and on track. Let's break it down.

S	SPECIFIC	What exactly are we trying to do?
M	MEASURABLE	How will we know we're making progress?
A	ACHIEVABLE	Can we actually do this in the time we have?
R	RELEVANT	Does it connect to our goals and values as fighters?
T	TIME-BOUND	When do we want to accomplish it by?

SAY

Let's walk through an example. If I say "I want to get better at boxing," that's a good intention, but it's too vague. A SMART version might be: "I will complete every mitt round with full effort and clean technique for the next seven practices to be ready for the Show Off." That goal is clear, doable, and connected to our training.

Let's brainstorm a few ideas together.

- Guide the team to pick one specific goal, then shape it into SMART format with their help.
- Write the final goal on chart paper and keep it visible every week from here on.

EXAMPLE TEAM GOAL

By December 12, all fighters in [School Name]'s Fight Like A Girl program will demonstrate a 10-move mitt-work combination, including every punch and defensive maneuver taught to date, with proper form and maximum effort, in front of their teammates and coach.

□ INTENTIONS

5 MIN

SAY JRNL Also in the fighter journals

Today's guiding question: what is one thing you intend to do today to get one step closer to our goal?

Every fighter shares, and every fighter ends her intention with snap clap.

□ TRAINING

30 MIN

SLIP TECHNIQUE New skill

- Watch the slip video, or explain the slip yourself.
- Stand with feet shoulder-width apart.
- Drop the right hand to the left knee, allowing the other knee to bend.
- Repeat on both sides, keeping the torso straight up and down.
- Switch to boxing stance and continue the movement, then add hands up by the face.

WATCH OUT

- Don't lean side to side or overdo it, the movement is slight.
- Slip to the outside, away from the open hand.

REACTION SLIP DRILL Coach fakes, fighters slip

- Fighters line up shoulder to shoulder in stance, hands up.
- Motion or fake a punch to one side; fighters slip to that side and reset.
- Start slow and predictable, then speed up, mix the sides, and sell the fake.
- Call out fighters who reset their hands every time.

SLIP-THEN-JAB PARTNER DRILL No contact

- Fighters pair up. One is on offense, one on defense.
- Offense throws a slow jab through her partner's head, not off to the side.
- Defense slips onto her back foot, loading the weight there, then answers with a jab thrown with power.
- Offense varies the timing between punches. Nothing runs on a steady 1 · 2 cadence, so the slip has to read what is coming.
- Switch roles after a round.

HELPFUL LANGUAGE

"Put your shoulder where your head used to be." Defense twists, she does not lean.

MITT WORK · 1 · 2 WITH SLIP-2 3 rounds

- Demonstrate holding mitts for a boxer when she slips.
- Emphasize that the movement when you punch and when you slip should feel the same.
- Round 1: 1 · 2 · slip
- Round 2: 1 · 2 · slip · 2
- Round 3: 1 · 2 with speed, then slip · 2 with power
- Boxer and mitt holder switch roles.

FREEZE BOX Game · whole group

- Each fighter finds her own space and gets into her boxing stance.
- Play music. While it plays, fighters move forward, back, left, and right in stance, small steps, hands up.
- Pause the music. Anyone who moves after the music stops is out.
- Last fighter standing wins. Fighters who are out call the movement they saw and rejoin the next round.
- Three rounds, faster each time.

 BURNOUT

7 MIN

- Partner mitts: 150 punches, then switch.
- Fighters who finish cheer on the ones still working.

 SHOUT-OUTS

3 MIN

- Fighters share shout-outs, each ending with snap clap.
- Coach shares a shout-out highlighting commitment to the team goal set today.
